We know that you might be juggling work, your own schedule, and having your children home more than before. Or, you might have sitters, family members, or siblings looking after your children. Join us this school year as we meet online monthly to discuss topics related to at-home learning and “management” specific to children with disabilities. We have some topics ready-to-go for you, and we will also take requests for monthly topics.

Details about our 6th Learning at Home online meeting are below. The meeting will be recorded for you to view at any time, but your live presence and active participation will allow you to discuss with others and get feedback on your questions.

Meeting: Thursday, March 18th at noon

Topic: Taking My Child Out in the Community: But, Behavior!

During this month’s meeting, we will discuss simple strategies to use and things to remember when taking children out in the community to stores, places of business, running errands, etc. Specifically, we will focus on behavior and how we can make outings less chaotic and more enjoyable. There will be opportunities for questions and discussion.
