

Join us for an Engaging Breakfast briefing on closing the gap on your lowest performing students including struggling readers and nonreaders!

Julie Ross a National Trainer will offer an overview of S.P.I.R.E.®, an Orton-Gillingham structured literacy based reading intervention program designed for struggling readers, students with dyslexia, and non-readers. SPIRE builds reading success through direct, explicit, and systematic instruction in phonological awareness, phonics, spelling, fluency, comprehension, and vocabulary. Join us to learn about:

- Multi-sensory program that applies the Science of Reading with Structured Literacy
- Explicit, teacher-led instruction is data-driven
- Reinforcing concepts for mastery through an intensive, structured, and spiraling curriculum
- Why SPIRE can be used to improve students' deficit areas
- The 10 steps that make up a S.P.I.R.E. lesson, including details and the importance of each
- Facilitates educators' ability to easily share, track, assess, and report through the Digital Teacher Companion Program.
- SPIRE is on Mississippi Evidence-based Academic Interventions Approved List

Julie Ross is a certified Special Education teacher in the areas of Learning Disabilities, Behavioral Disorders, and Educable Mental Handicaps. Julie has over 25 years of teaching experience with students at all education levels, K-12; in both private and public school settings.

S.P.I.R.E. was written by Orton-Gillingham Fellow, Sheila Clark-Edmands, M.S. Ed. and incorporates the Orton-Gillingham approach as well as the latest reading research on how struggling readers learn. This multisensory program was created specifically to teach at-risk children and children with dyslexia how to read.
